

PRESS RELEASE APRIL 25, 2019.

Golden Omega joins the Dolphin-Safe program.

The certification and right to use the logo are granted by Friend of the Sea and the Earth Island Institute to companies which are in compliance with the Dolphin-Safe requirements.

Golden Omega has reached an agreement with Friend of the Sea and Earth Island Institute to hold the Dolphin-Safe logo for all the Omega-3 concentrates and derived products manufactured by the company. The agreement will allow the brands using Golden Omega's concentrates to potentially also utilize the logo in their final products.

The Dolphin-Safe project has been the precursor of all sustainable seafood programs and standards. Started by the Earth Island Institute (www.earthisland.org) in 1990, the Dolphin-Safe project has saved millions of dolphins from being killed in tuna nets

"Our company has a permanent commitment to protecting the environment and the sustainability of resources, which we are reaffirming by joining this program. This is a natural consequence of using in all our Omega-3 concentrates only anchovy from Chilean and Peruvian waters, from Friend of the Sea certified sources" commented Jorge Brahm, Managing Director of Golden Omega

Due to its strategic and unique location in the middle of the richest fishing grounds for anchovy in the world, in the South Pacific Ocean, Golden Omega has full control and traceability for the fish oil that is utilized in its production. "We have been offering a guaranteed resource for all our Omega-3 products ("Pure anchovy from the South Pacific") certified by Orivo, with Friend of the Sea certification and now we are giving our clients the possibility to join the Dolphin-Safe program" detailed Claudio Aracena, Commercial Director of Golden Omega.

Companies which are using Golden Omega's concentrates in their products that are interested in using the Dolphin-Safe logo should contact the Friend of the Sea organization.
